Straightforward STRATEGY

Serving as a Stronghold for the Community

The staff at the Lawton Fort Sill Chamber of Commerce strives to accomplish its mission by focusing on five strategic areas: economic development, membership services, tourism development, legislative and military affairs, and community enrichment.

“The Board of Directors identified these five strategic areas of importance for the business community,” says Chamber President and CEO Debra Welch.

For its hard work, the Chamber was recently recognized as one of the best in the nation. It is one of 11 Chambers in the country to be given four-star accreditation by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which represents the interests of 3 million businesses. The accreditation is based on policies, organizational procedures and positive impact on communities, Welch says.

“They set very high standards,” she says. “And we have documented results.”

Welch says economic development efforts include recruitment of new businesses and expansion of existing businesses through the Chamber’s subsidiary, the Lawton Economic Development Corporation (LEDC). In 2014, LEDC supported Serco—a leading provider of professional, technology and management services primarily to the federal government—in expanding its workforce by almost 500 jobs. It did this by providing connections to explore state incentives and coordinating a job fair to draw in area applicants.

Economic development is also fostered through the Chamber’s legislative and military affairs program. Members create legislative agendas for the local, state and federal levels to ensure Chamber leaders stay focused on the actions at hand, Welch says. The Chamber also organizes events that connect citizens to elected officials to develop relationships, ask questions and be heard on issues important to the area.

One successful lobbying effort was the U.S. Army’s adoption of BAE Systems’ Paladin PIM, a high-powered artillery vehicle. Welch says the Chamber supported the Army’s equipment needs for many years to keep legislators focused on providing the best equipment for our ground forces.

“Our Chamber stayed with it,” she says.

The Chamber also promotes a spirit of friendship and mutual cooperation between active duty military and the business community through its Lawton Fort Sill Co-Op program, which connects military members with the local business community. Special events and joint community projects also help forge personal relationships and a sense of living in community with each other, Welch says.

The Chamber partners with the Lawton Fort Sill Convention and Visitors Bureau to promote tourism. The

The Lawton Fort Sill Convention and Visitors Bureau works with partners throughout the community uses special services and incentives to aggressively pursue groups and individuals to visit the area.

Training future leaders is also a top priority. Through its community enrichment program, the Chamber supports education and workforce development as well as community planning.

Farmers markets as well as programs that focus on well-being are all contributing to a healthy lifestyle in Lawton Fort Sill.

LIVING THE Healthy LIFE

Partnerships, Programs Promote Positive Habits

By Arionne Nettles and Carolyn Williams-Walker

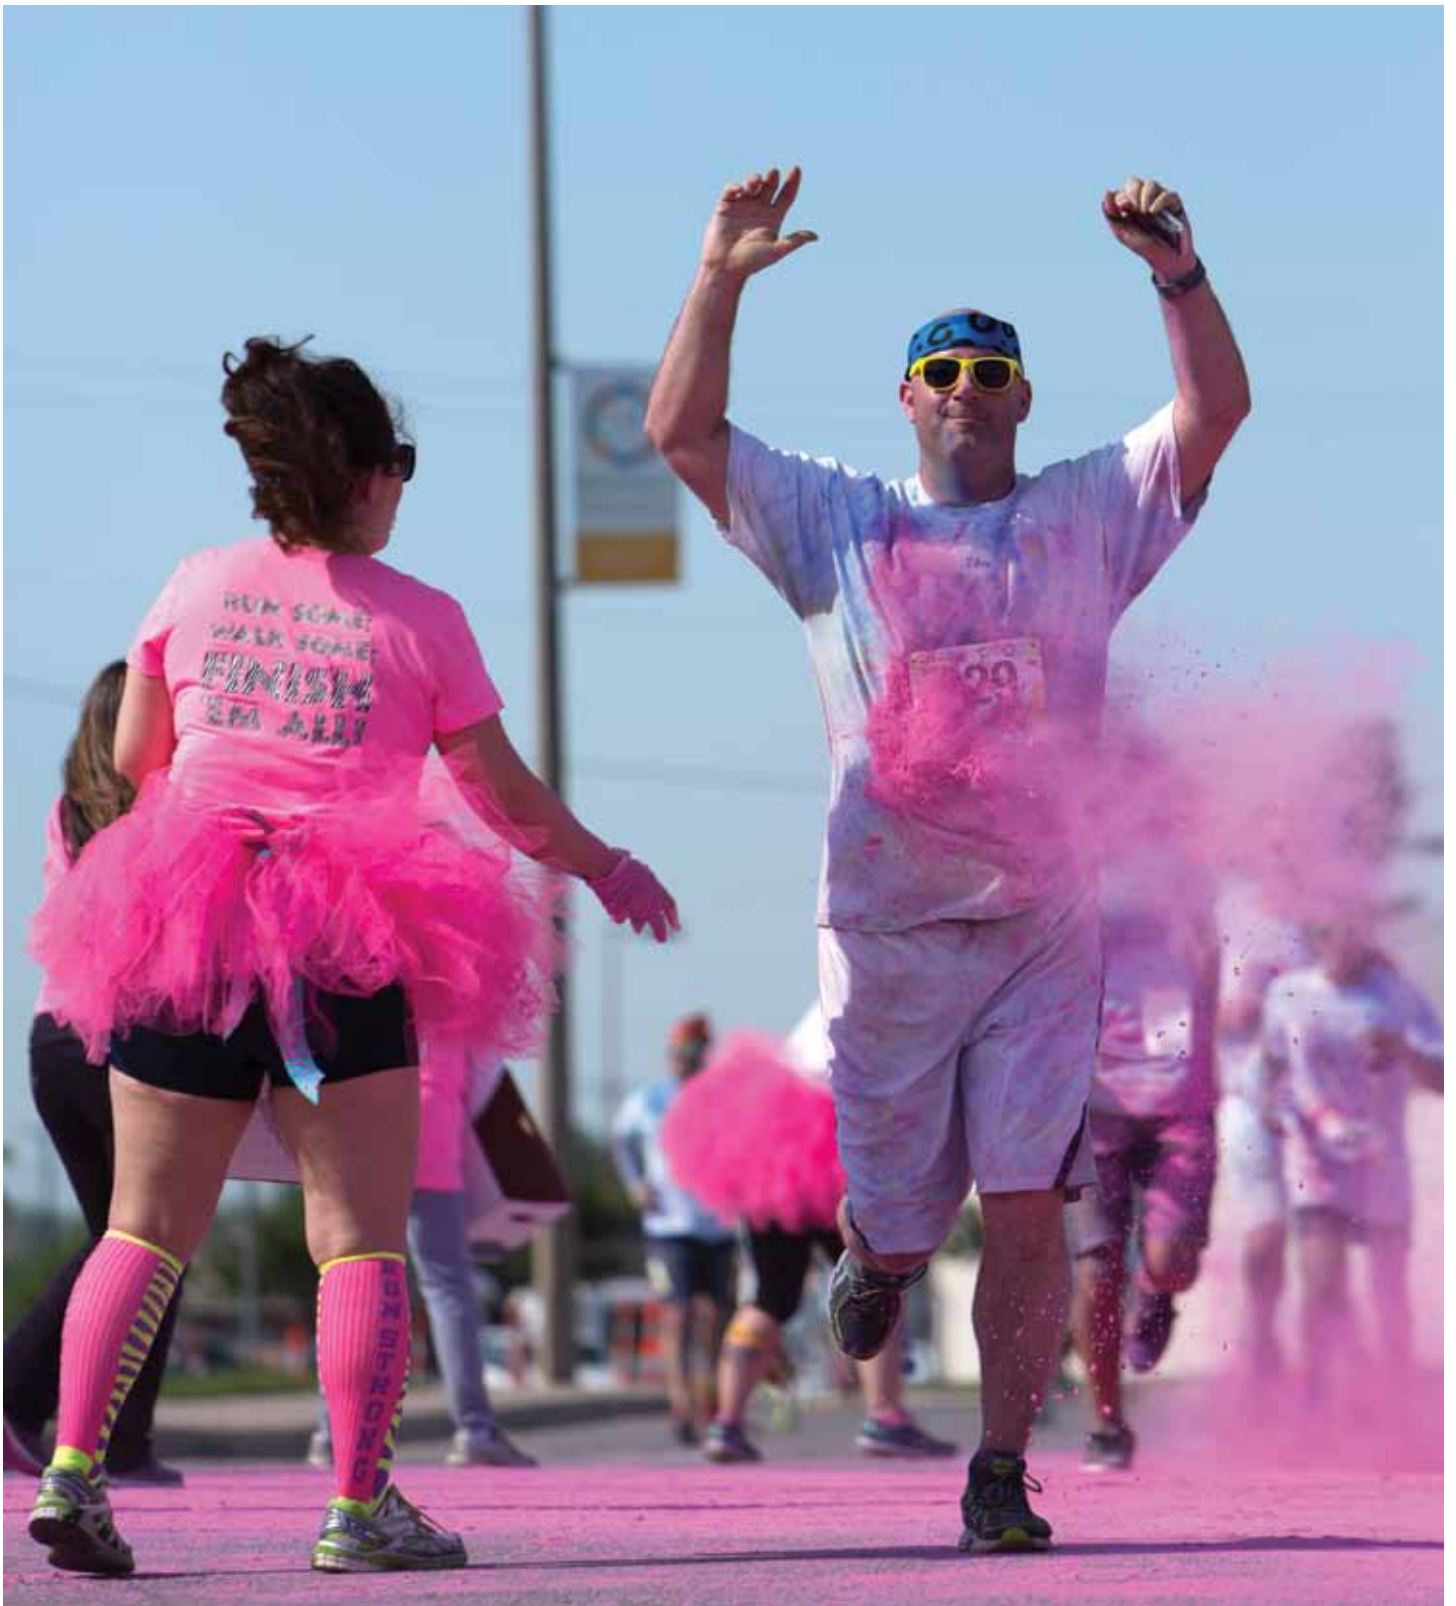

When it comes to living a healthy lifestyle, residents in Lawton

Fort Sill know how to do it right. Thanks to organizations that provide all types of encouragement and education, everyone has the tools they need to enjoy a lifetime of well-being.

The Lawton Fort Sill Chamber of Commerce takes the lead in helping locals stay fit as a fiddle. It partnered with Fit Kids of Southwest Oklahoma, Comanche County Memorial Hospital, Southwestern Medical Center, Oklahoma Heart Hospital to present its sixth annual Community Wellness Expo in January.

Attendees had the chance to consult with physicians and specialists about a range of medical concerns. For $20—normally a $200 value—they could also purchase blood-work packages that screened for LDL cholesterol levels, a lipid profile and A1C glucose levels. For some, the testing uncovered previously undiagnosed issues.

Local organizations stage many events like the Technicolor Run for the community to participate in throughout the year.

"The first year, we had an EMT that didn't know he had high glucose," says event coordinator Sharleen Gehers. "Good things certainly come out of it."

While many adults learned a lot at that expo, their age group isn't the only one that's championed in the community. The health of the area's youngest residents is a top priority for many associations as well. Fit Kids of Southwest Oklahoma, for instance, focuses on ensuring that children are active and healthy every day.

"We work in an effort to create a community in which health and fitness are no longer a project, but truly a way of life," says Kyle Rogers, community program coordinator for Fit Kids.

Through the Chamber's Wellness Expo, the community can consult with doctors about a range of conditions as well as have their vital signs checked and be tested for diabetes.

All of Fit Kids' efforts are built on two primary goals: to increase youngsters' physical activity and to promote healthy eating habits. The group does both through almost 30 projects. Its Safe Routes to School program ensures children can walk safely to and from school while the Farm to School program encourages local farmers to sell their produce to schools so the cafeterias can serve them up at lunchtime

Since it started in 2006, Fit Kids has experienced tremendous growth and a great amount of support. The community garden it created in 2009 at Cameron University, for example, has doubled in size.

In addition to its educational programs, Fit Kids is committed to celebrating good nutrition by making it fun. Its farmers market is open from April to November and highlights interesting information about local growers. As a part of the Annual Tomato Festival presented by the Southwest Oklahoma Growers Association each July, its Great Tomato Catch-Up Race offers a free, half-mile run for kids 12 and under.

Getting families up and moving together is a prime concern for the community as well. The Fitness in Action Series not only promotes its own set of events for running, walking and biking, as well as triathlons, it serves as a clearinghouse where other local groups can share details about their own physical activities.

Children are encouraged to stay fit and have fun thanks to events such as the Great Tomato Catch-Up Race.

“We have more than 60 organizations involved that are committed to a healthy community, ranging from civic organizations, schools, city government and business,” says Rogers of Fit Kids, which presents the series.

Since its start in 2013, Fitness in Action has also grown significantly—going from 17 to 75 events. Several family favorites include Comanche County Memorial Hospital’s Spirit of Survival Race. Staged in October, it benefits the Cancer Centers of Southwest Oklahoma. The Technicolor Run, put on in May, is an ‘80s-themed jaunt for all ages. Sponsored by Cameron University and Comanche County Memorial Hospital, it supports the Children’s Starlight Fund—a foundation dedicated to improving pediatric care at the hospital.

No matter if residents are looking to lose a few pounds, develop a regular fitness regiment or just want to embrace a better diet, they can find the perfect community program that’ll keep them in top shape. ■

Cameron University's Center for Emerging Technology and Entrepreneurial Studies has been put into place to sustain, bring and recruit business to the Lawton Fort Sill area.

Open FOR BUSINESS

Organizations Work to Foster Commerce

Lawton Fort Sill has all the resources residents need to advance their careers, whether it be training for the workforce, opening a new business or developing a career in the armed forces.

The Business Center at Great Plains Technology Center is helping professionals prepare for success through classes, strategic planning, one-on-one consulting, human resources assistance and more.

When a company calls for employees to have a skill set in a particular field, the business center is able to quickly offer programming to help residents earn the necessary credentials.

"We are very in touch with our community needs and very responsive to what it is asking for," says Pat Beck, manager of the new business incubator opening at the center in 2016. "We cater to both secondary and post-secondary students, and we have adult and high school classes."

The incubator will be set up to aid local entrepreneurs through the process of launching a new company.

"The Small Business Administration's data says that 80 percent of businesses that start this year will not be in business in five years,"

The Center for Emerging Technology and Entrepreneurial Studies (CETES) also offers a business incubator for the area.

"CETES is Cameron University's consolidated economic development venture to promote and assist business creation, stabilization and growth," says Arun Tilak, director of CETES. "For a business startup, CETES staff meets with the entrepreneur. Depending on the need perceived, we will work on things like the business plan, market research and competitive analysis. CETES has state-of-the-art furnished offices and conference facilities for businesses that need [workspace]."

CETES also collaborates with multiple agencies that provide support and expertise, including the Oklahoma Manufacturing Alliance, the New Product Development Center at Oklahoma State University and the Oklahoma Department of Commerce.

Prevention Network, a nonprofit focused on prevention of substance abuse.

Yet developing new companies and ideas is only part of the picture. Lawton Fort Sill greatly benefits from the influx of soldiers and their families to the area. Fort Sill is the largest employer in Oklahoma and has contributed more than $22.5 billion to the state economy throughout the past 12 years.

The post is home to the Air Defense Artillery Center and School, part of the Fires Center of Excellence (FCoE).

"The Fires Center of Excellence and Fort Sill oversee and facilitate initial entry, combined and joint training utilizing resources found exclusively on Fort Sill," says Nancy Elliott of the Fort Sill Public Affairs Office. "The 434th Field Artillery Brigade Basic Combat Training (BCT) grows the Army by transforming nearly 18,000 volunteers into soldiers every year."

The FCoE works with many branches of the armed forces for training.

"As the home of Marine artillery, the U.S. Marine Corps continues to train cannon crewmen and Marine artillery officers," says Elliott. "In cooperation with Sheppard Air Force Base, more than 75,000 train through Fort Sill's special-use airspace each year. Fort Sill's International Student Division facilitates the training of hundreds of field artillery and air defense artillery enlisted and officers from 52 countries around the world." ■ By Peggy Carouthers

Scholarly CONDUCT

Exceeding Expectations Daily

The Lawton Public Schools (LPS) has a wide range of academic and extracurricular offerings that make it a fantastic educational option for the diverse population of Lawton Fort Sill.

“The district includes students from all over the world,” says Dr. Jamie Polk, assistant superintendent for educational services. “We have big-city offerings with a small-town feel.”

The district’s 15,000 students are served by three high schools, four middle schools, one alternative school, 17 elementary schools, and two prekindergarten centers.

LPS opened Freedom Elementary School in May 2015. This new state-of-the-art school serves Fort Sill’s military families.

The district offers many programs to ensure students reach their full potential. Through both dual-enrollment classes offered by Cameron University and Advanced Placement courses—students can earn college credit while they’re still in high school.

A love of learning is established early on, which helps even the littlest scholars grasp advanced concepts.

Parents have alternative educational options for their children too, including faith-focused institutions like Lawton Christian School.

LPS also has programs for gifted and talented students and in fine arts education. Ninety-minute-long reading blocks in all elementary schools promote literacy, and transitional and pre-kindergarten programs are offered.

Career pathways are also a focus at LPS. They allow students to specialize their education for the workforce. Biomedical and pre-engineering programs prepare students for high-demand fields.

Counselors at each high school use the Oklahoma Career Inventory System to help students begin planning for their careers. Students also have the opportunity to enroll in courses at the Great Plains Technology Center to begin professional training.

In a new push toward technology, Tomlinson Middle School provides iPads to every student for instructional purposes. All schools in the system will move to fully wireless Internet to better serve technology-based instruction.

LPS also has many opportunities for students to be engaged in activities and the community.

Extracurricular sports include state-championship-winning football and basketball teams, volleyball, wrestling, softball, baseball, soccer, swimming, cross country, tennis, track, and golf. There are also opportunities for the fine arts; community service projects; partnerships with the United Way, Food for Kids and the Fit Kids Coalition; and active participation with other local community groups. ■ By Rachel Nall based education for infants through 4-year-olds.

"We are not your typical day care," says preschool director Janet Hanza. "We are a preschool, and when you bring your kids to us, they will be educated and learning something every day."

Students get more than the typical introduction to colors, shapes and the alphabet. Teachers come in weekly to present additional topics such as Spanish, American Sign Language, music, art and Bible study.

The school is renovating this year, adding another classroom as well as indoor and outdoor playgrounds.

St. Mary's Catholic School focuses on students' academic success as well as spiritual and moral development in the Catholic faith.

For more than 100 years, small class sizes have helped scholars to excel in math, science, social studies and language arts.

Students may also participate in the St. Mary's Liturgical Music Ensemble and Harp Ensemble, art, Spanish, physical education, and sports including archery and soccer.

Lawton Academy of Arts and Sciences is a pre-K-12 college preparatory school for gifted and talented students.

It offers academic programming in language arts, mathematics, science, social sciences, physical education and foreign language. Fine arts classes are available in music, art and theater.

Students are placed in classes based on academic level rather than age.

"One of the things that makes our school unique is that we compartmentalize," says Jim Johnson, president of the board of directors at Lawton Academy. "We don't say you're 6, and you need to be in first grade. We have one young man who is attending the eighth-grade classroom, but is already taking junior-level math, though he's only 10 years old."

The school provides a wide range of extracurricular activities from a debate team and cross country to a robotics team and tennis. ■ By Peggy Carouthers

Upper Iowa University-Fort Sill supplies associate, bachelor's and master's programs in accounting, human resources management, public administration, criminal justice, general business, liberal arts, education and more.

Servicemen, service women and civilians can participate through a combination of online and on-campus courses.

Webster University's Fort Sill campus has flexible learning schedules to accommodate the busy lives of military personnel. There are master's-level programs in human resources management, information technology management, management and leadership, and business administration. Online programs are also available.

"We are privileged to share with our community the opportunity to pursue graduate programs on Fort Sill," says Sandra Kunz, Webster University's regional director. "An educated community makes it a strong one, and strong communities make a strong nation, to be sure."

A number of Lawton's facilities prepare students for careers through hands-on training.

The Center for Rural Health, a program of the Oklahoma State University (OSU) Center for Health Services, prepares medical students to serve rural communities.

"The OSU Center for Health Sciences has established a physician pipeline to increase the number of physicians practicing in rural and underserved areas of our state," says

Jeff Hackler, assistant to the dean for rural service programs at the Center for Health Sciences. "We have established a Rural Medicine Track, which helps students spend more time in these communities to better experience small-town health care needs."

The program is open to fourth-year medical students who complete rotations in community hospitals and emergency medicine specialties.

The Great Plains Technology Center supplies career-training programs in areas such as education; health science; hospitality and tourism; information technology; law, public safety, corrections and security; manufacturing; technology; transportation, distribution and logistics; architecture; and business, management and administration.

"All of our programs are hands-on," says Teresa Abram, the center's media coordinator. "Each of our instructors has real-world experience working in the industry they are teaching, and learning isn't a teacher at the front of the class lecturing. Its hands-on activities, such as auto service students working in auto bays and using the equipment that dealers are using."

The Oklahoma Cooperative Extension Service offers programs that relate to all aspects of life, from financial management and nutrition to youth development and agriculture. Extension programs are free or low cost through county Extension offices via workshops, demonstrations, conferences, 4-H Clubs, and research-based fact sheets as well as one-on-one consultations with Extension Educators. ■ By Peggy Carouthers

Surgical teams work closely to ensure that patients heal efficiently.

$20,000 in annual community health services and more than $92,000 in charitable donations and sponsorships. Wellness and benefiting the overall community are major emphases for the center, which provides a speaker's bureau on health topics and free e-health customizable newsletters. Along with Comanche County Memorial Hospital and other local medical organizations, SWMC is also a supporter of the annual Community Wellness Expo.

"At Southwestern Medical Center, we strive to make a difference in the lives of our community by providing quality, compassionate care in a work environment that fosters employee commitment and pride," says marketing director Nicole Jolly Coffman. Lasso in some good times! Whether spending a day at the rodeo or scanning through artifacts at a museum, there is plenty of fun to be had in Lawton Fort Sill.

Center OF CULTURE

Year-Round Events and Attractions

Those new to Lawton Fort Sill, and even those just visiting, soon realize what locals have known for years—there is an abundance of history, art, culture, entertainment and outdoor activities to explore throughout the area.

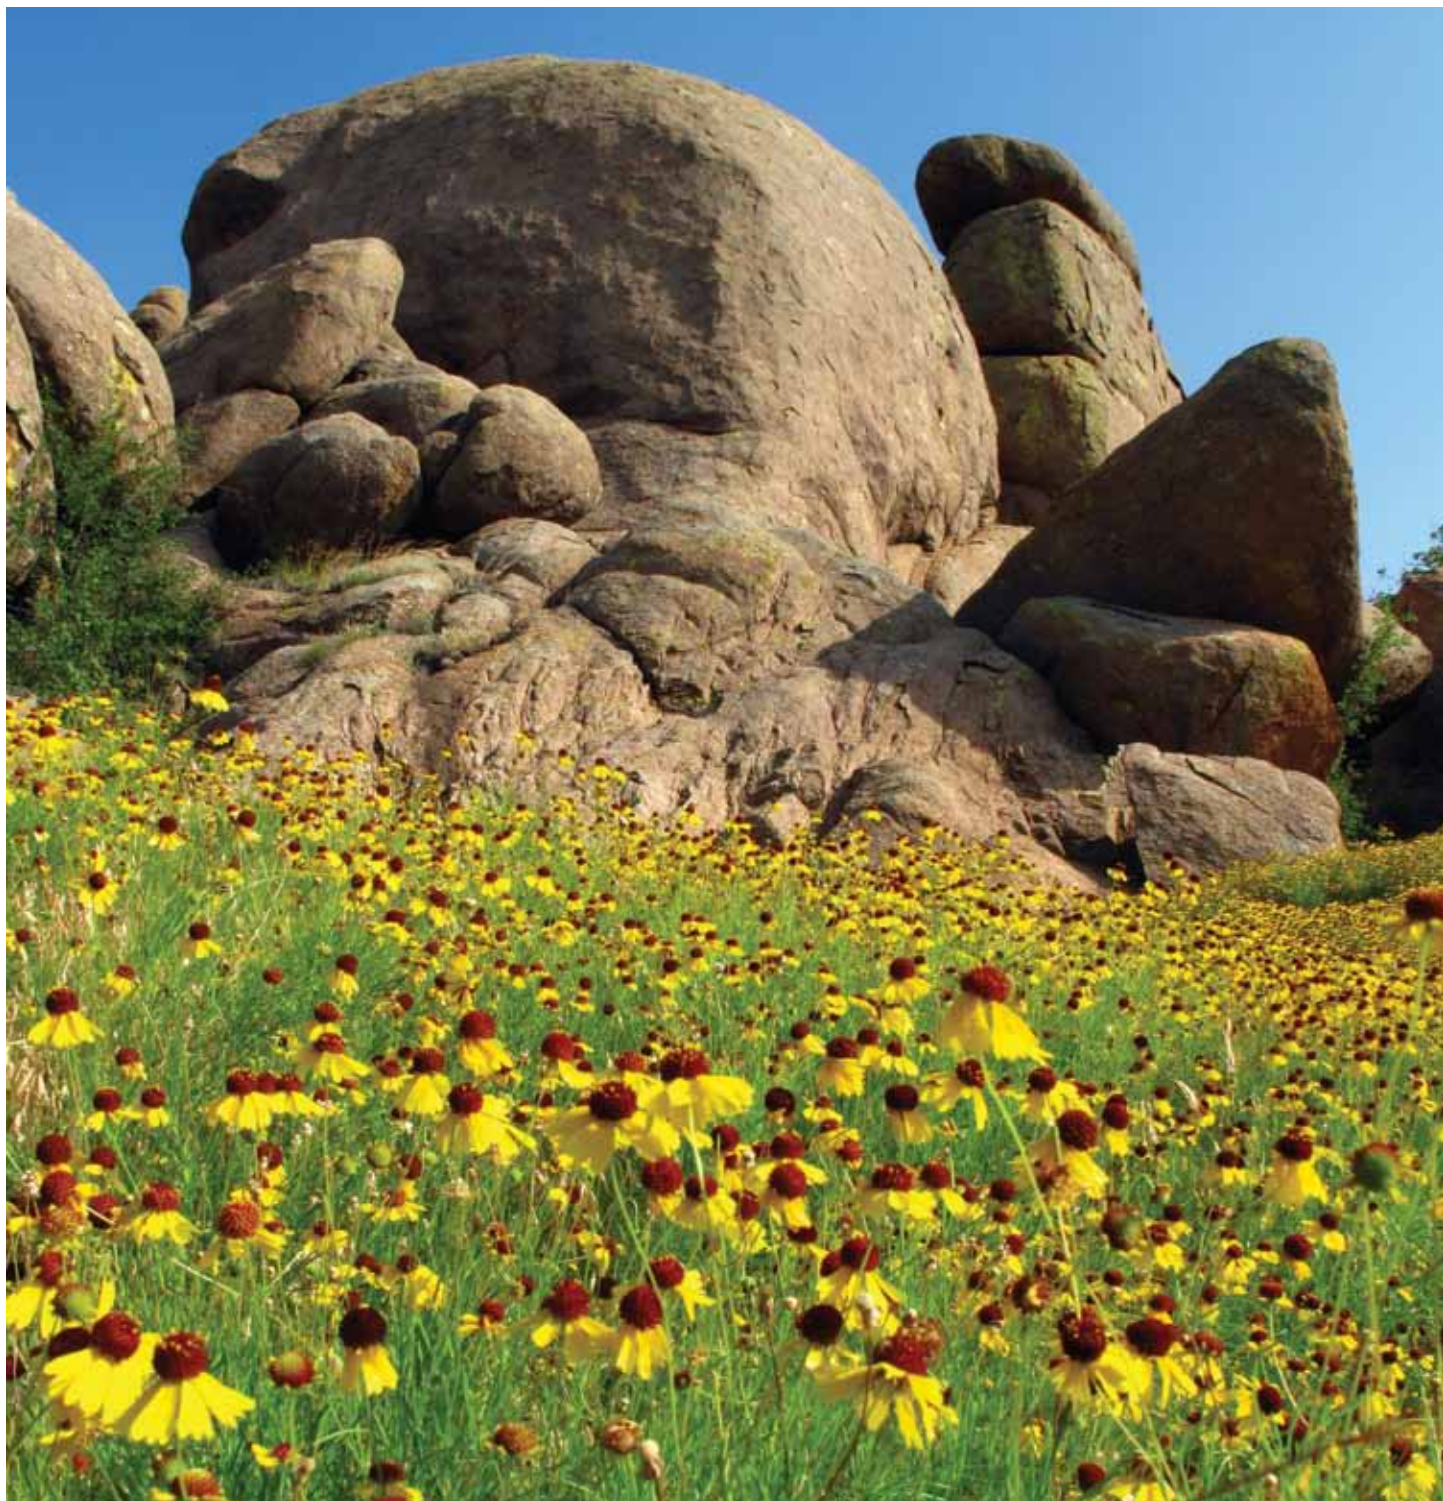

“Many of our guests do not realize we are a city of approximately 100,000,” says Jacob Russell, tourism director at the Lawton Fort Sill Chamber of Commerce. “It affords us the opportunity to provide many shopping, dining and entertainment options with a small-town touch.”

THE MUSEUM OF THE GREAT PLAINS

The museum is undergoing a complete renovation of its main gallery from January to October 2015. When it reopens, it will continue to celebrate the diverse history of the Great Plains culture from the earliest Native American settlers to present day.

The Comanche National Museum and Cultural Center houses exhibits about this native tribe.

No matter the season, the Wichita Mountain Wildlife Refuge boasts picturesque views from every angle.

COMANCHE NATIONAL MUSEUM AND CULTURAL CENTER

Visitors can view exhibits about the history of the Comanche people as well as their military service as “Code Talkers” during World War II. An award-winning interactive exhibit invites individuals to hunt buffalo as the Comanche once did.

LESLIE POWELL GALLERY

Located in downtown Lawton, this gallery hosts fine art exhibitions and events. The Leslie Powell Foundation regularly awards grants for projects related to architecture, dance, literature, music, visual arts and performance arts.

HISTORIC MATTIE BEAL HOME

Built from 1907–1909, this 14-room, 3,580-square-foot mansion features a grand staircase, a solid-slab Italian marble mantle and massive Corinthian columns. It is open for tours as well as available to rent for weddings and other special occasions.

Holy City of the Wichitas is open year-round, but it is most frequented during its Easter Passion Play.

HOLY CITY OF THE WICHITAS

This 66-acre site was constructed to resemble Israel during biblical times. While it is open year-round, it is most famous for its Easter Passion Play, which has been staged since 1926—the longest-running of such performances in the country.

WICHITA MOUNTAINS WILDLIFE REFUGE

With nearly 60,000-acres, this refuge has hundreds of plant and animal species, including bison, Rocky Mountain elk and white-tailed deer.

“Lawton Fort Sill is a place where you can go from the busy city to scenic drives within a matter of minutes by heading out into the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge,” says Russell. “It was just named the No. 1 wildlife refuge in the United States.”

FORT SILL NATIONAL HISTORIC LANDMARK AND MUSEUM

Since 1935, this museum has been dedicated to preserving the artillery once housed at Fort Sill. Artifacts include cannons, flags and a fully furnished cavalry barracks. An upcoming exhibit featuring the museum’s wagon collection will illustrate the history of transportation in the area.

MEDICINE PARK AQUARIUM AND NATURAL SCIENCES CENTER

This venue houses exhibits dedicated to the wildlife of Oklahoma and beyond. The aquarium has seven galleries that display varieties of fish found across the state. Outdoor exhibits include the Butterfly Center, the River Otter Habitat, the Earth Sciences Center and the Space Sciences Center.

U.S. ARMY FIELD ARTILLERY MUSEUM

While visitors can view memorabilia from the Second Seminole War, they can actually feel weapons and objects that were commonly used by a soldier during World War II. Artillery from the 1700s to present day—including cannons, rocket launchers, gun motor carriages and tanks—is also featured.

The Historic Mattie Beal Home is open for tours and available for weddings and other special occasions.

CAMERON UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

The university educates some of the area’s best and brightest musical talent. It regularly offers vocal and instrumental performances. Visitors can take in the sounds of the jazz ensemble, concert band, concert choir or Centennial Singers. Its annual presentation of a major Broadway musical is always highly anticipated.

LAWTON COMMUNITY THEATRE

In its 63rd season, Lawton Community Theatre gives local players a chance to hone their acting skills in comedies, dramas and musicals. Productions are offered year-round and include family friendly options. Performances scheduled in 2015 include “Shrek Jr.: The Musical” and “The Rocky Horror Picture Show.”

LAWTON PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

This ensemble, a community favorite, has been making music for more than 50 years. Its 2014–2015 season featured performances of Dvorak’s “New World Symphony” and Mozart’s “Symphony No. 40.”

ARMED FORCES DAY PARADE

This celebration, staged on Armed Forces Day every May, brings the pomp and circumstance with more than 120 entries. An estimated 3,000 military participants wind their way through town to Elmer Thomas Park where they

INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

Visitors celebrate the cultures of the world at this September event. It features world music, performers, demonstrations and more. There's no cost for admission at this family favorite.

LONGHORN AUCTION

September 2015 will mark the 72nd annual Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge Longhorn Auction. This Lawton tradition is an opportunity for the refuge to sell its excess purebred Texas longhorns.

BISON AUCTION

The Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge Bison Auction takes place every October. Much like its longhorn counterpart, this sale provides the opportunity for bidders to acquire a number of the livestock that ensures the refuge maintains a manageable level of the herd.

SPIRIT OF SURVIVAL RACE

This October event includes a half-marathon, quarter-marathon, 5K and one-mile walk. This year, participants are encouraged to dress as their favorite superhero. All proceeds benefit the Cancer Centers of Southwest Oklahoma. ■ By Rachel Nall

Whether tempting the wallet or the palate, retailers and restaurants have the fix.

Burgers, Nightlife AND BOUTIQUES

Great Eats and Deals Around Every Corner

With its steady increase in retail and restaurant developments, the Lawton Fort Sill region has emerged as a hot spot for shopping and dining.

Residents and visitors can choose from a generous variety of popular national chains. In fact, the area holds the largest retail conglomeration of storefronts between Oklahoma City and Dallas.

A recent addition to the retail landscape is Dick's Sporting Goods, providing area consumers with a variety of products for just about every activity imaginable.

Yet longtime favorites still draw the avid patron. Central Mall in Lawton is anchored by Dillard's, JC Penney and Sears. It also has a cineplex as well as approximately 70 other shops.

And then there are the local businesses. Entrepreneurs' emporiums and eateries showcase charm, cultural flair and unique business approaches.

at McKenzie's Burger Garage, located in a renovated auto shop, can provide literally just that. Diners can enjoy such mouthwatering options as the "Tune Up Burger" while perusing the diner's eclectic automotive memorabilia.

Owner Les McKenzie says the clientele is "growing every day."

Mutti's German Restaurant serves up authentic cuisine, and owner Petra Edmonson aims to have customers feel like they are back in Germany.

"We have quite a following here, especially with the military service members," says server Sonja Scrimger.

Filled with endless options, there's no doubt that Lawton Fort Sill offers locals and tourists the best shopping and dining around. ■ By Mallorie Ann Ingram

Those craving burgers, German fare or anything in between, can find it in Lawton Fort Sill.
